OLD HICKORY'S WIFE.

When General Jackson was a candidate for the Presidency, in 1828, not only did the party opposed to him abuse him for his public acts, which, if unconstitutional or violent, were a legitimate subject for reprobation, but they defamed the character of his wife. On one occasion a newspaper published in Nashville, was placed upon the General's table. He glanced over it, and his eyes fell upon an article in which the character of Mrs. Jackson was violently assailed. So soon as he had read it he sent for his trusty old servant Dunwoodie.

"Saddle my horse," said he to him, in a whisper, "and put my holsters on him."

Mrs. Jackson watched him, and though she heard not a word, she saw mischief in his eyes. The General went out after a few moments, when she took up the paper and understood everything. She ran out to the south gate of the Hermitage by which the General would have to pass. She had not been there more than a few seconds before the General rode up with the countenance of a madman. She placed herself before the horse and cried out:

"Oh, General, don't go to Nashville! Let that poor editor live."

"Let me alone," he replied; "how can you to know what I was going for?"

She answered: "I saw it in the paper after you went out; put up your horse and go back."

He replied furiously: "But I will go—get out of my way."

Instead of this she grasped his bridle with both hands.

He cried to her: "I say let go my horse! The villain that raviles my wife shall not live!"

She grasped the reins tighter and began to expostulate with him, saying that she was the one who ought to be angry, but that she forgave her persecutors from the bottom of her heart, and prayed for them—that he should forgive if he hoped to be forgiven. At last, by reasoning, her entreaties and her tears, she so worked upon her husband that he seemed mollified to a certain extent. She wound up by saying:

"No, General, you shall not take the life of my reviler—you dare not do it; for it is written: 'Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord!'"

The iron-nerved hero gave way before the pleading of his beloved wife, and replied:

"I yield to you; but had it not been for you and the words of the Almighty, the wretch should not have lived an hour."

THE STOCKHOLDER'S SHARE.—"Oh, yes," said the eminent legal man, "corporations are great institutions. You've heard the story about two boys who formed a corporation?" "No," replied his friend.—"Well, then I'll tell you," resumed the legal gent.: "There were two boys who had a cent each, and they wanted to buy a two-cent cigar. Neither could buy it alone, and the elder of the two suggested that they form a corporation, of which he was to be President and the other was to be a stockholder. The cigar was purchased and the President began to smoke it. The stockholder looked on, expecting that his puff would come, but the President consumed one-half and then two-thirds. 'Look here,' said the stockholder. 'ain't I going to have a chance?' 'I don't see it,' replied the President. 'But what am I to get for my capital?' 'Well,' said the President, 'I guess you can spit.'"

Poverty is the load of some, and wealth is the load of others, perhaps the greater load of the two. It may weigh them to perdition. Bear the load of thy neighbor's poverty, and let him bear with thee the load of thy wealth. Thou lightenest thy load by lightening his.—Augustine.

WHITTIER'S OPINION OF A BOILED DINNER.—The old-fashioned New England beverage cider was mentioned, and Mr. Whittier stated that he had once derived much benefit when unwell, "when nothing tasted good," from the use of cider. Huntington suggested that without cider we should no have vinegar. "Well," said Whittier "vinegar is not of much use, after all."—"Except," replied Huntington, "to eat on cabbage and cucumbers." "Neither of which are fit to be eaten," remarked the poet. "I think it would be a good idea to start a prohibition party on those two articles. As for cabbage, it is not fit to be eaten; if you cook it in the house, you have got to burn your house down afterward to get rid of the smell: it is certainly the most diabolical smell that was ever invented;" and Whittier, who was sitting near the open stove grate, upon the top of which he had deposited his tall hat, folded his hands and laughed a hearty silent laugh. "What do you think of onions, Mr. Whittier?" asked I. "Well," he replied, "onions are not quite so bad, for you can get rid of the smell of those in three or four days."—"Then," said Huntington, "you would not approve of the old-fashioned "boiled dinner?" "No. I think that is a detestable dish. I remember that my father used to have it, in which cabbage, onions, beets potatoes, turnips, and carrots were all boiled up together, and turned out into a great dish all in a heap, with a great greasy piece of meat in the middle. I think that is the reason why the present generation is not so strong as the former. It is owing to the way the parents lived, eating so much pork and potatoes. Our last war showed that The farmers were not nearly as strong as the men recruited in the cities—Portland, Portsmouth, and Boston." "But the people in the cities do not have the free air we get in the country," said Huntington. "I know that," replied Whittier; "but they live better, and that makes a great difference."—Harper's Magazine for February.

A FATAL CHOICE.—With the drifting clouds of smoke and steam that rise from the ruins of the ill-fated Newhall House at Milwaukee there comes also a sadly romantic story, in which a gentleman of this city is one of the actors. Only a few months ago Mr. Porteous, of this city, went to Canada to marry a Miss Sutton, to whom he had been engaged for some time. He remained there some time. His friends waited, with no little wonder, at the delay to hear that the ceremony had been performed. No word came, however, and to the surprise of all, when, at last, the groom-elect did return, he brought with him the sister of the lady to whom he had been engaged, and for whose hand he had gone to the Dominion.

It seems that when Mr. Porteous reached the home of his fiance another had come between them. She had met and learned to love an actor, and had promised to become his wife. This Mr. Porteous learned when she had refused him her hand and given him his liberty. He then found out that his affection had transferred itself to Miss Sutton's sister, and forthwith wooed and won her, returning home in triumph with a bride. The young lady to whom Mr. Porteous first intrusted his heart, no longer fettered with a betrothed, then gave her heart to John Gilbert, of the Minnie Palmer Company, and with him went on the boards. This fact was not known to the wife of Mr. Porteous however, and for several weeks she had been expecting a visit from her sister. When two days ago the news of the terrible calamity at Milwaukee was flashed over the wires, Mrs. Porteous was struck by the name of Mrs. John Gilbert among the victims, and an investigation proved the sad facts too true. Her only sister, the bride of one night, was burned in that fearful death-trap.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A well-known comedian is said to have the unfortunate habit of biting his finger nails. He also has a small daughter. The other day "that dear child" deliberately pared her finger nails, and, in the innocence of her heart, approaching her comical progenitor, said: "Papa," said she, "here are some nails for you to eat."

THE SUN'S HEAT.—During the month of August, 1882, by direction of Government, Professor S. P. Langley took position on the summit of Mt. Whitney to ascertain the amount of heat imparted to the surface of the earth by the sun. Mt. Whitney was selected on account of it being the highest peak in California, and the clearness of the atmosphere. The experiments showed that the heat was capable of annually melting a crust of ice covering the whole earth over one hundred and fifty feet deep. An ordinary black bulb thermometer in vacuo rose 130 degrees Fahrenheit, while the temperature in a blackened copper vessel, covered by two sheets of common window glass, rose above boiling point. With such a vessel water could be boiled among the snows of Mt. Whitney by the direct solar rays.

BRIDGEPORT, JANUARY 27, 1883.

JOB PRINTING.—Job printing of the finest description will be furnished at this office at Sacramento prices.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

BODIE PAPERS.—There is no better evidence of the advance or decline of a town than can be found in the offices of its newspapers, and none are better posted than its publishers. Three years ago four dailies and two weeklys were published in Bodie. They all had a good circulation and advertising patronage. But it was evident that the journalistic field was being overworked and would soon be exhausted. Coupled with this was the stubborn fact that there was too much of the mushroom growth to be a healthy and progressive town, consequently the publishers were the first to realize the reaction, and that there was barely room for one paper in Bodie; and the field was left to one. Since then Bodie has rapidly declined, and the exodus steadily continues; all classes of people are leaving, business houses are closing and property and rents are about down to zero. The publishers notice this by decreasing subscription lists and advertisements. Yet in the face of these unfortunate events an entire new outfit for a daily is the latest sensation in Bodie. A bill is before the Legislature to erect a Branch Insane Asylum in Santa Barbara county.

THE NOONDAYS.—We clip the following from the S. F. Bulletin of the 20th inst.:

"The North Noonday Mining Company, by W. J. Taylor, Secretary, has petitioned the Superior Court to be declared an insolvent corporation. The liabilities of the Company are stated at $238,989 93, of which $214,954 85 are due Henry Wadsworth, of this city, on a judgment rendered December 13, 1882. There is also a joint indebtedness of the North Noonday and Noonday Mining Companies, of $16,329 80. The assets consist of mining property in Mono county, valued at $20,200, subject to Wadsworth.

A similar petition has been presented on behalf of the Noonday Mining Company. The liabilities amount to $205,269 44, including a judgment in favor of Henry Wadsworth for $179,258 01, and one-half the joint indebtedness with the North Noonday Mining Company. The assets consist of mining property in Mono county, valued at $20,200, and subject to Wadsworth judgment.

The Red Cloud Consolidated Mining Co. has also filed a petition stating its liabilities at $168,157 10, including a judgment in favor of Henry Wadsworth for $133,786. The assets consist of mining property in Mono valued at $45,000."

BAL MASQUE.—Washington's Birthday is to be observed here in a spirit of jollity, a masquerade ball having been decided on, to be given at the Allen House on Thursday evening, February 22d. Porter's Quadrille Band will furnish the music, Mrs. Allen will provide a fine supper, and the party will be a grand success, and a credit to our town.

SCHOOL HOUSE PUMP.—Aside from a supply for the schoolroom, the necessity of being prepared in case of fire, it would be moneys well expened by purchasing a Forester non-freezing puump, one hundred feet of hose and a few fire buckets. The old frozen pump should be removed.

THE JAIL.—Hughes and Hemingway having finished straightening the iron cells, warped when the jail burned, Porter and Anton are building a temporary jail by inclosing the cells.

ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday, at Clinton, the 3½ year-old daughter of J. Compton fell on a hatchet, which diagonally cut her face from the left eye across the nose.

COSTUMES FOR THE BALL.—Those desiring costumes for the Washington Birthday Ball should leave orders with Charles Anton on or before the 31st.

SKATING.—The river and extensive ponds afford fine skating facilities, and our people avail themselves of them.

DIVIDEND.—The Bulwer Con. Co. has declared a dividend of 5 cents per share, payable February 12th.

DAILY MAIL.—A daily mail between Bodie and Lundy will commence on May 1st.

THE KENTUCK.—Rich ore continues to be taken from this mine.

Fatal Railroad Accident.

A terrible accident occurred on the Southern Pacific Railroad, near Tehachepi Station, on Saturday morning last. The regular Southern overland passenger train that left San Francisco on Friday morning, was wrecked between three and four o'clock on Saturday morning by the train getting loose while detaching the "help" engine on the Tehachepi summit, the train having been safely hauled up the heavy grade. It was carelessly left without an engine, and commenced backing down the grade it had just passed over. Moving slowly at first, it kept increasing its speed and went down the grade some five miles with a fearful velocity, causing one of the sleepers to jump the track, and piling the others in a heap, and setting fire to the wreck. Fifteen persons were killed, and a number wounded. Among the killed are Mrs. Downey, wife of ex-Governor Downey, of Los Angeles, who was on her way home from the Inaugural Ball at Sacramento; Mrs. John T. Cassell, of San Francisco; F. W. Pearson, Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger; Miss M. E. Squires, of Oakland; —, Lawrence, the sleeping car porter; C. H. Lorrabee. The following were injured: Ex-Governor Downey, A. L. Michael, H. E. Connors, Mrs. P. C. Hatch, Mrs. R. L. Hatch, Mrs. Capt. Brown, and Mrs. Waterhouse. A number, names unknown, were burned to death and could not be recognized. This is the most fatal railroad accident that has occurred in this State since the Alameda collision, and was the result of gross carelessness—most of the men connected with the train being on the ground, and unable to get on board after the train had started. The matter should be thoroughly investigated, and the blame properly placed.

LOSSES AT SEA.—On the 18th inst. the steamer Cambria left Hamburg for New York with 380 passengers and a crew of 110. She grounded before leaving Elise, but was hauled off and proceeded on her voyage. On the 19th, during a thick fog, she collided with the steamer Sultan and sank in a short time. A boat with thirty-nine persons reached land. Five steamers searched for other boats without success. The wreck of the Cambria was seen five miles off Barkum light, headed northwest, with the topsail yards above water. The Sultan, heavily damaged, arrived safely.

THE UNION.

BRIDGEPORT, JANUARY 27, 1883.

HOME.

A lady, who is a famous housekeeper, recommends an economical plan for making cakes without butter, which may be of use to our readers who have a dread of "margarine." Take a piece of fat pork, melt it down and strain it through a piece of coarse, thin muslin. Set it aside until it is cold. It is then white and firm, and may be used like butter in any kind of cake. In pound-cake it is said to be delicious.

Spice Cake.—Take the yolk of four eggs well beaten, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted with two and a half cups of flour, one cup of sugar, one-half cup of syrup, one-half cup of milk, one-half cup of butter, two teaspoonfuls of powdered cloves, one of cinnamon, one of allspice. Rub the spices well into the flour, add the syrup after the sugar and milk are beaten, then add the eggs, the milk, and lastly the flour. Bake half an hour in a hot oven.

Bisque Cream.—One quart of sweet cream, two dozen macaroons, one cup of sugar, one gill of sherry wine. Crumble or roll the macaroons, put into the cream, mix into the sugar and wine, beat well together, then freeze.

Cream Cookies.—Cream cookies are made of one cup of butter, one of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of sweet cream, half a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, and half a teaspoonful of soda; flavor with cinnamon and nutmeg, or if you wish to have them very delicate, flavor with extract of lemon.

To prevent the hair from falling out, apply once a week with a piece of flannel or sponge a wash made of one ounce of powdered borax, half an ounce of powdered camphor, and one quart of boiling water.

To prevent the hands from becoming rough or chapping, put a little almond meal or any other oily meal in the water when washing the hands, and take care to wipe them thoroughly dry.

To relieve hoarseness and tickling in the throat, make a gargle of the white of an egg beaten to a froth in a half a glass of sweetened lukewarm water.

To remove soot from a carpet, so that it will leave no stain, cover the soiled spot thickly with salt, and brush up at once.

A teaspoonful of charcoal in half a glass of warm water often relieves sick head ache.

To iron embroidery nicely, press it on the wrong side between two flannels.

Lemon juice is preferred to vinegar by many eaters and lovers of raw oysters.

A CONTINGENT FEE.—A friend of mine, who is a newspaper man and involved in litigation, called on the vivacious James Ridgeway, one of the brightest young lawyers in the country, yesterday, and asked his assistance in a suit. "Well," says Ridgway, "have you got any money?"—"Why, I am a newspaper man. Q. E. D." "Well, I will take your case on a contingent fee." "And what is a contingent fee?" asked my friend. "My dear boy," said Ridgway, mellifluously, "I will tell you what a contingent fee to a lawyer means.—If I don't win your suit I get nothing. If I do win it you get nothing. See?" My friend saw. His case is not on the calendar.—N. Y. Morning Journal.

Judge Pitman, of the Superior Court of Boston, often says a bright thing. The other day a case came up wherein the plaintiff sued a constable for the conversion of a lot of liquors, and the principal witness for the plaintiff was questioned as to the daily profits of the business. The lawyer followed his inquiry with another as to daily receipts, when Judge Pitman, with a smile, interrupted, and said, "O never mind, there isn't probably much difference between the receipts and the profits."

As a small boy put his skates on this winter for the first time, after two hours' pretty hard work, he came bursting in, rosy with exercise and excitement, shouting, "Oh, mamma, it's lots of fun, but there's an awful sight of picking up about it."
